Covid 19 has impacted all of us in one way or another. Over the last year many of us have lost someone we love, become isolated, gotten sick, lost jobs, missed out on benchmark celebrations such as graduations, proms, weddings and even funerals. This Pandemic has changed what we had grown to consider “normal” everyday living.

We know there are many things to balance as the result of the pandemic. You don’t have to do it alone.
To begin, we will take a look at the Direct & Indirect impact that Covid19 has had on us.
Direct Impact:

- Physical Health/contracting the illness
- Having a family member or friend contract the illness
- Death related to the illness

Indirect Impact:

- Social. Emotional and mental well-being
- Academically
- Economically
- Cut off from family members & friends
- Loss of major life events

Physical Health:
If you get covid19:

- stay home
- Drink fluids
- rest
- stay in touch with your doctor
- monitor your symptoms

Talking to your kids about Suicide & Depression
Academics:

- Interrupted learning /larger opportunity gaps
- Greater difficulty in mathematical gains
- Lower achievement scores
- Rise in drop out rates
- Loss of social/emotional involvement and achievements

Stability, Support and Communication are necessary for Academic Progress.

Keep a regular daily schedule
- Allow for some flexibility, but do your best to stick to the same times to create a routine.

Designated spaces:
- Set up an area for your student to do their school work. The space should be calm, quiet and comfortable. Do your best to provide what they may need in that space, pens papers, access to Wifi

Set Academic expectations with them:
- Many kids are barely signing in to their virtual classes, discuss with them how they can better engage.

Open Communication with Teachers:
- Check in with teachers for updated information. Check school tool and parent square. Email or call teachers to get support & suggestions.

Minimal Distractions:
- When your student is engaging virtually, minimize distractions, noise and interruptions. Discuss lengths of virtual sessions to better plan each day.
